Wisconsin Valley Athletic Medicine is offering its first annual WVAM Athletic Training Workshop for high school students interested in athletic training. The workshop is designed for students to experience firsthand knowledge of the athletic training profession through guidance by certified healthcare professionals.

Wisconsin Valley Athletic Medicine is a community service non-profit organization comprised of local orthopedic physicians, surgeons and physician assistants, physical therapists, and athletic trainers who work together to promote the health, well being, safety and medical care of local athletes. Affiliated facilities are Bone & Joint Clinic, Sport & Spine Clinic and Merrill Physical Therapy.

Through this athletic training workshop, high school students can become more educated in the profession when considering college options, along with receiving basic skills needed to assist their high school athletic teams.

Topics will include recognition of common injuries, terminology of injuries, prevention and treatment of frequent injuries, taping/wrapping, safe return to play plans, and more!
